

Do
More.

Certify. Why? The future belongs to students who do more.

MOS 2016 certification gives students and schools the tools they need to chart their own course, fulfill their ambition, and realize their potential.

What does it mean to do more? For students, teachers, and administrators, it's about going the extra mile. It's about effort, achievement, and transformation. That's where Microsoft Office Specialist comes in:

- For students, MOS certifications boost academic performance, prepare them for the demands
- For educators who teach MOS courses, they enjoy a more engaged student body.
- For administrators who invest in a MOS program, they see lower numbers of dropouts and disciplinary cases, more diplomas, and higher GPAs.

91% of hiring managers consider certification as part of their hiring criteria

"We are focused on college and career readiness. One of the things we want our students to have when they leave our schools is the ability to be successful in college but also to be successful in the workplace."

*Tina Thomas
Instruction Supervisor
Queen Anne's County Public Schools*

MOS includes three levels of certification: Specialist, Expert, and Master. Students can certify at all three levels. They should try to obtain the highest level possible. The market demands—and caters to—those who possess the most education and skills.

Students can digitally broadcast their accomplishments with MOS 2016 online badges. These digital badges contain verifiable data that tell employers and admission committees what the student did and why it matters. In other words, digital badges give instant credibility.
